TransitionCare™ Overview

Updated May 2022

Effective transitions to the home setting are crucial.

Just as crucial as the care provided during the inpatient stay. The transitioning population is particularly vulnerable to costly and complex re-occurring care patterns, which often extend from critical medication errors. Having a collaborative approach with pharmacy during the active part of the transitions process helps avoid newly emerging medication-related problems from escalating into conditions that cause patients to cycle back into inpatient care.

What is TransitionCare™?

The TransitionCare™ Program at Centennial Pharmacy Services is specifically designed to meet the needs of facilities and individuals who have had a recent hospital or skilled nursing stay and are now returning home. The program's goal is to provide an extra layer of support and care for people who are living with chronic conditions and are at risk for re-hospitalization.

How can Centennial make a difference?

Centennial Pharmacy Services has a long history of improving health outcomes. Centennial's pharmacist's extensive education on evidence-based use of medications and their clinical counseling skills positions them as integral members of the transitions team. Centennial's interventions start at discharge and continue in the patient's home setting for as long as the patient desires, reducing adverse drug reactions, use of emergency care, and hospital readmissions. In addition to improving communication with providers, Centennial's team is trained to communicate with patients and educate them on proper medication use. Centennial also provides the tools and resources needed to keep patients adherent to complex medication regimens and gives patients, caregivers, and providers confidence in the continuity of care. These improved health outcomes improve quality metrics for patients, providers, and facilities.
